

Peter Brent

Peter Brent is a Senior Consulting Partner for The Ken Blanchard Companies® who utilizes an energetic and engaging style of facilitation to create a relaxed, safe learning environment in which participants can challenge their existing thinking and working. Utilizing his background as an operational manager, he provides personal examples that resonate with people's own experiences and effectively link the content to participants' work and organization.

Peter is successful in training leaders at all levels, from frontline managers to executives, as a result of his practical and pragmatic approach. His specific areas of expertise include leadership, customer service, and team development. Peter has facilitation experience in a variety of industries, including finance, pharmaceuticals, information technology, petrochemical, and hospitality.

Peter's previous roles include operational management of large and small teams as well as directorship of a national marine industry federation, where he led the creation of several skill-based training workshops that were open to the general public. In these roles, he oversaw the provision of the highest level of customer service while also building the skills and knowledge of his own team.

With 15 years of leadership development experience, Peter trains multiple Blanchard® programs and is currently a Master Trainer in SLII®, Self Leadership, and Legendary Service®. He is also certified to administer and interpret the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator® and Belbin Team Role assessments.

Peter is a keen sailor, and in his spare time he enjoys teaching at his local club in his position as a Royal Yachting Association Senior Instructor.

Testimonials

"Peter led an engaging and entertaining series of workshops, enabling all the delegates, who were of differing skills and abilities, to get real value from the five-day course. It was only afterward that I realized just how much knowledge and expertise he had imparted, always in 'bite-sized chunks'. Everyone showed greater confidence and ability in their role as trainers after the sessions had finished."

—Jacqueline Moore, Head of HR, Training & Development

"Peter is enjoyable, informative, inspirational, and extremely accommodating of our learning needs. His patience and flexibility, combined with his exceptional knowledge of the material, provided for a helpful and stimulating training."

—County Council

"Peter's delivery was brilliant, as he both 'knows his stuff' and is so enthusiastic! He provided practical examples that related theory back to real-life and on-the-job experiences."
